RICHES FOUND IN ODD WAYS

Experiences of Gold Seekers Make Pages of Romance Read Like Very Ordinary Matter.

If every man who washed his own pants discovered a gold mine there would be a slump in washerwomen. But that is how the largest nugget ever found in California was turned out.

It was a young Indian who was washing his clothes in a certain stream when this big lump of fortune came his way. Who will say now that virtue—cleanliness, for choice—does not bring its own reward?

The California Eldorado, to which all the world rushed with one accord, was first spotted by a man who went out early one morning to dig onions with a sheath knife, and found gold adhering to the blade.

Talking of sheath knives, they were the favorite means of flicking out gold in the old Bendigo days. The diggers used these knives for many things, and wore them in their belts. They used to dig in their "claims," flicking out bits of gold with the point.

Imagine taking 32 pounds' weight of gold out of a hole in the earth before breakfast! Yet such an experience was common enough.

And a gold mine in New Zealand was discovered by a man who picked up a stone to throw at a wood pigeon!

Modern Parenthood.

Being a parent used to be one of the most simple, natural and inevitable developments in the world. People used to grow up, marry, and raise families—they still do back in the country—and society was satisfied if parents could clothe, feed and exercise a general supervision over their offspring.

But nowadays one has no business to be married and have children unless, sleeping and waking, one is conscious of the responsibility. Competent modern parents must supervise the feeding, housing and playing of their children on terms that, if applied, a generation ago, would have brought the reproduction of the human race to a dead standstill. And now, responsive to the same forces, competent modern parents must supervise schooling. The schoolmaster is no longer to pursue his own sweet way. Parents are going to inspect him, as they inspect every other factor in the child's life. Modern parenthood has thus become an exacting full-time vocation—that is, persons who enter the profession have no time for other occupations, except the suffrage, and they cut themselves off from all other forms of remunerative and enjoyable activity.—Abraham Flexner in the Atlantic.

FIRST BASEMEN GAIN IN OFFENSE

(By Hamilton, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Sept. 18.—That big league first basemen are constantly gaining in importance as parts of their team's attack is becoming evident through the crop of youngsters now hanging the ball on the nose for no fewer than five clubs.

The sixth probably will be added to this total before the close of this season, and undoubtedly when the next season begins.

The most prominent of these youths is George Sisler, the scintillating first basemen guardian with the St. Louis Browns. He is pointed out everywhere as one of the greatest players in the game and he proves it in nearly every game the Browns play. His fielding is topnotch, and he hits right close to 300 steadily. Sisler has been a big leaguer two years.

Walter Pipp of the Yankees is another newcomer who has made a bid for fame among the first basemen. He leads the American league in home run clouts and has a heavy batting average. Last year, his first, he led the league's first basemen in fielding.

John McGraw appears to have picked up a world beater in Walter Holke, who was purchased from the Rochester International league club. McGraw was so sure of this youth's ability that he released Fred Merkle without hesitating. Holke has lived up to expectations in every respect.

Jack Ness, who holds the world's record for hitting in consecutive games is doing excellent work for the White Sox. This is his first year to stay in the big show.

Judge Griffith's fielding sensation, is spending his first year in the majors and has done creditable work.

Louis Guisto will be added to the crop of brilliant newcomers next spring when he gets a try-out with the Indians. His work has been so good in the Pacific coast league that no one doubts his ability to beat Chick Gandil out of a job.

Besides these youngsters who have performed well above the average, both leagues are able to boast of remarkable first basemen, among them being some of the greatest stars of the game. Hal Chase and Jake Daubert are a couple of the most prominent, both in the National league. Fred Luderus of the Phillies and Ed Konetsky of the Braves are two of the most feared batmen in the older circuit and are excellent fielders. Stuff

OUTFITTERS FOR MEN & BOYS

Melvinis of the Athletics is another dangerous sticker and in spite of his small stature is considered one of the game's greatest fielders. Hohlitzel and Gainer are two important parts of the Red Sox machine.

George Kelly, utility man for the Giants, may blossom into a George Sisler if rumors constantly heard around the Polo grounds are borne out. He has a remarkable throwing arm and John McGraw is said to be trying to make a pitcher of the youngster.

Kelly recently stood about twenty feet to the right of home plate at the Polo grounds and threw a ball to the topmost tier of seat in the left field bleachers. Which is some heavy. Other players tried it and none of them even hit the bleachers, although they moved up to the foul line.

LOTT'S WIFE ALARMED

"You ain't going to put this in the paper?" asked an applicant for a marriage license Saturday afternoon after Deputy Court Clerk Richardson had delivered the precious document. It authorized the union of John V. Lott, 25, Chickasha, and Beulah Smith, 23, Chickasha, both colored.

"Why don't you want it put in the paper?" asked the deputy clerk solicitously.

"Because I don't want everybody in the world to read it," was the reply.

When the prospective bridegroom insisted upon the suppression of this valuable piece of news Deputy Richardson explained that while the Chickasha Daily Express was widely circulated and was therefore a valuable advertising medium yet it was not probable that this particular case of Lott's wife would enjoy as great publicity as did a previous case which went on record many hundred years ago. This appeared but did not entirely satisfy him and he went his way but half convinced.

MEET AFTER 40 YEARS

When her son hung up the phone yesterday after telling the man on the other end that although his grandfather was not at home he might come right on to the house, Mrs. Edna T. Watkins, court clerk elect, had some misgivings. Her father, J. R. Callahan, who is traveling agent for the Chickasha Cotton Oil company, was out of the city, and she knew nothing whatever of his business.

When the visitor arrived and called for Mr. Callahan, Mrs. Watkins invited him in but told him that she knew nothing of her father's business. Turning to her mother she was on the point of introducing Mr. Bradbury when Mrs. Callahan exclaimed, "You need not introduce him, we went to school together." The stranger proved to be a cousin of both Mr. and Mrs. Callahan, whom they had not seen for forty years, and the meeting was therefore a joyful one. Mr. Bradbury is a resident of Anderson, N. C.
